The KEYMACRO is an extension of the operating system (Windows) that provides a set of macros for the assignment of the function keys F1 through F12. The Macros assigned to the function keys F1 through F12 can be used to control various parameters of the system. This allows you to set your computer in Sleep mode after F1 has been pressed to avoid the need to press the real Sleep button during working hours. KEYMACRO lets you define a series of commands that will be run upon a function key being pressed. The commands can be triggered from anywhere in the operating system. In addition to the standard user interface applications such as the calculator, calculator, and task manager, KEYMACRO gives you access to specialized versions of the calculator, keyboard, and task manager. Keyboard Macro Description: This is a simple macro that allows the key combination that is mapped to the CTRL key to be released, to prevent the accidental activation of the default function assigned to that key. For example, you could assign a macro to the Ctrl key that would release it, but keep the Caps Lock key activated, so that no accidental caps lock will be assigned to the letter C.
